Pre-test Questions

1. Do you draw? If yes, how often?

Yes, 1-2 times a week, mostly when I have free time.

2. How would you describe your level: beginner, hobbyist, or more advanced?

Hobbyist.

3. Have you used any drawing or creativity apps before? Which ones?

A little. Mostly Pinterest for inspiration, and sometimes Procreate / notes app for sketches.

4. When you draw, what's usually hardest: getting started, staying motivated, or improving

Staying motivated. I get stuck comparing myself and then I stop.

First Screen Impression

At first glance, it felt very simple and a bit childish. The design looked friendly, but it also made me think the app might be more for kids or very young beginners, rather than adults. I understood it was probably about drawing and tracking progress, but it didn't immediately feel like a serious tool.

Tasks

Task 1 (Upload a drawing)

- Start time: 14:05
- End time: 14:06
- Time on task: ~60 seconds
- Success level: Complete success
- SEQ (1-7): 7 - Very easy
- Major errors: 0
- Minor errors: 0
- Wrong clicks (mis-clicks): 0
- Moments of hesitation:
 - The participant hesitated briefly when selecting a category, mostly because they weren't sure which one fit their drawing best.
- Expected something else:
- Notable quotes
 - No functional issues, but the participant expected the upload flow to look a bit more serious visually (less playful), especially for adult users.
 - It's pretty straightforward.
 - Is is for kids?
- Notes
 - Upload was easy and clear overall. The main feedback was about the visual tone, not usability.

Task 2 (Find inspiration)

- Start time: 14:07
- End time: 14:08

- Time on task: ~50–60 seconds
- Success level: Complete success
- SEQ (1–7): 7 - Very easy
- Major errors: 0
- Minor errors: 0
- Wrong clicks (mis-clicks): 0
- Moments of hesitation:
 - No real hesitation. The participant immediately understood where to go and what to do.
- Expected something else
 - The participant expected slightly more variety or richer inspiration options (more than just a small set), but they still completed the task easily.
- Notable quotes
 - This part is really easy.
 - It works, but it feels a bit more simple
- Notes (optional)
 - Flow was smooth and intuitive. Feedback was mostly about content depth, not usability.

Task 3 (Progress + feedback)

- Start time: 14:09
- End time: 14:11
- Time on task: ~2 minutes
- Success level: Success with minor issue
- SEQ (1–7): 6 - Easy
- Major errors: 0

- Minor errors: 1
 - The participant hesitated when trying to understand what the feedback was referring to
- Wrong clicks (mis-clicks): 1
 - Opened one drawing, then went back and opened another because they weren't sure which one the feedback text was about.
- Moments of hesitation
 - Hesitated when reading the feedback.
 - Slight pause while navigating between older drawings to understand the "progress" meaning.
- Expected something else
 - Expected the feedback to be more clearly referring to a specific drawing (or show both drawings side-by-side).
 - Expected more "progress indicators" (something like "before/after" or a small timeline).
- Notable quotes
 - I don't really understand this feedback
 - I get it, but it could be clearer.

End of test (Debrief)

1. "What part of the app felt the most clear?"

Probably the main flow. Like, I always knew what I was supposed to do next. Also the little indicators and labels helped, so I didn't have to guess.

2. "What part felt confusing or annoying?"

Not really anything major. I didn't get stuck. Maybe just tiny moments where I looked twice to be sure where I was, but nothing annoying.

3. "Did the progress and feedback feature feel motivating or stressful?"

Kind of both. It's motivating because you see improvement, but feedback can also be stressful if you're already a bit self-critical.

4. "If you could change one thing, what would it be?"

I'd change the background on the first screen. It's not a big problem, but it affects the vibe, and it is the first thing you see. It felt a little childish.

5. "Would you personally use something like this? Why or why not?"

Yeah, I think so. I like the idea of tracking progress, and the inspiration part is useful too. I am not really hyped about the feedback part but I can use it as a tracking library.
